RUSSIA SEES A NEW REBELLION

Now Reported That Both The Army And Navy Are To Join With The Rebels.

ABANDONED THE GENERAL STRIKE

Laborers Believe That Several Small Disturbances Will Forward Their Movements For A General Recognition.

[SPECIAL BY SCRIPPS-M'RAE.]
St. Petersburg, Nov. 18.—A number of roughs have started a mass-mob riot this morning, crying "Down with the Jews" and "Death to all Jews." The police, fearing assassination, fled and a military patrol hastened to the scene and dispersed the mob. In the fog this evening the roughs took advantage of the darkness and murdered several persons. A number of shops were also pillaged.
Call Strike Off
A decision to call off the strike was made this morning at a mass-meeting of workmen. It was resolved to put into operation the system of spasmodic strikes, by which they propose to stop all work in the city at intervals until the government yields.

Eddy's Report
Washington, Nov. 18.—Spencer Eddy, the United States charge d'affaires at St. Petersburg, cables the state department that the city is quiet this morning. It indicates the strike is subsiding and Witte is gaining the upper hand for law and order.

Bucharest, Nov. 18.—The corpses of Jews are constantly found floating down the Pruth river from the province of Bessarabia, where the Russians massacred them.

Workmen claim that many soldiers are attending the strike meetings. They declare that twenty-five officers of the Imperial guards conferred with the revolutionary committee, for four hours. They gave details of whole regiments which are prepared to side with the proletariat.

Text of the Appeal.
The appeal to the army is as follows:

"Comrades and brothers: For a long time we have misunderstood each other. Your officers taught you to regard us as enemies of the fatherland and as criminals whom you should shoot, beat with your whips, and butcher with your bayonets.
"Our struggle for the people's freedom and the people's well being has been depicted to you as a revolution against the fatherland, which you are obliged to suppress. Many of you, being this, have shot your own brothers, filling the streets of our towns with blood.
"The case is now altered. The eyes of many of the soldiers and sailors have been opened. They understand that all of us are brothers and that we are sons of the same nations whose common enemies are your commanders and those in power. They understand that the liberty of the people is their own liberty, and the good of the people their own good.
"In Shadow of Death.
"The men of the fleet at Kronstadt stood against their commanders, and signified that they wanted to lead the lives of men, that they wanted liberty, and they associated themselves with the cause of the people. A hundred sailors at Kronstadt have been handed over to court-martial, and today or tomorrow may be executed. Knowing this, we workmen of St. Petersburg struck, demanding the release of our sailor and sailor brothers and the abolition of court-martial and the death penalty.
"Is it possible that you, soldiers and sailors, will not arise and help your brothers at Kronstadt? Is it possible that you will remain hand in hand with the murderers of your brothers at Kronstadt?
"Interests Are Identical.
"We workmen say: 'The cause of the soldier and the sailor is our cause, and so we have gone on strike. You must say everywhere, 'The cause of the workmen is our cause, and the struggle of the workmen our struggle,' and you must associate yourselves with the struggling people. You must strike, and refuse to perform the duties imposed on you. Do not listen to the word of command calling upon you to put down the workmen's movement. Let not one shot be fired by you against the people.
"Down with your bloodthirsty commanders! Long live a free government and a free people!"

REFUSES TO HEAR WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS IN CASES

Former Senator Mason Flays The Judiciary Of Illinois In Ignoring Prisoners' Rights.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—An attack was made upon Illinois judges in an argument made before Judge K. M. Landis in the United States Circuit court by former Senator William E. Mason. He was seeking the release on a writ of habeas corpus of George W. Felts, serving a term in the penitentiary for murder. The prisoner appeared in court in the custody of a deputy warden.

Attorney Mason declared that the writ of habeas corpus had become a myth in this state. He said that Judge Landis was the first judge, with one exception, he had found in one year who would consent to hear the petition.

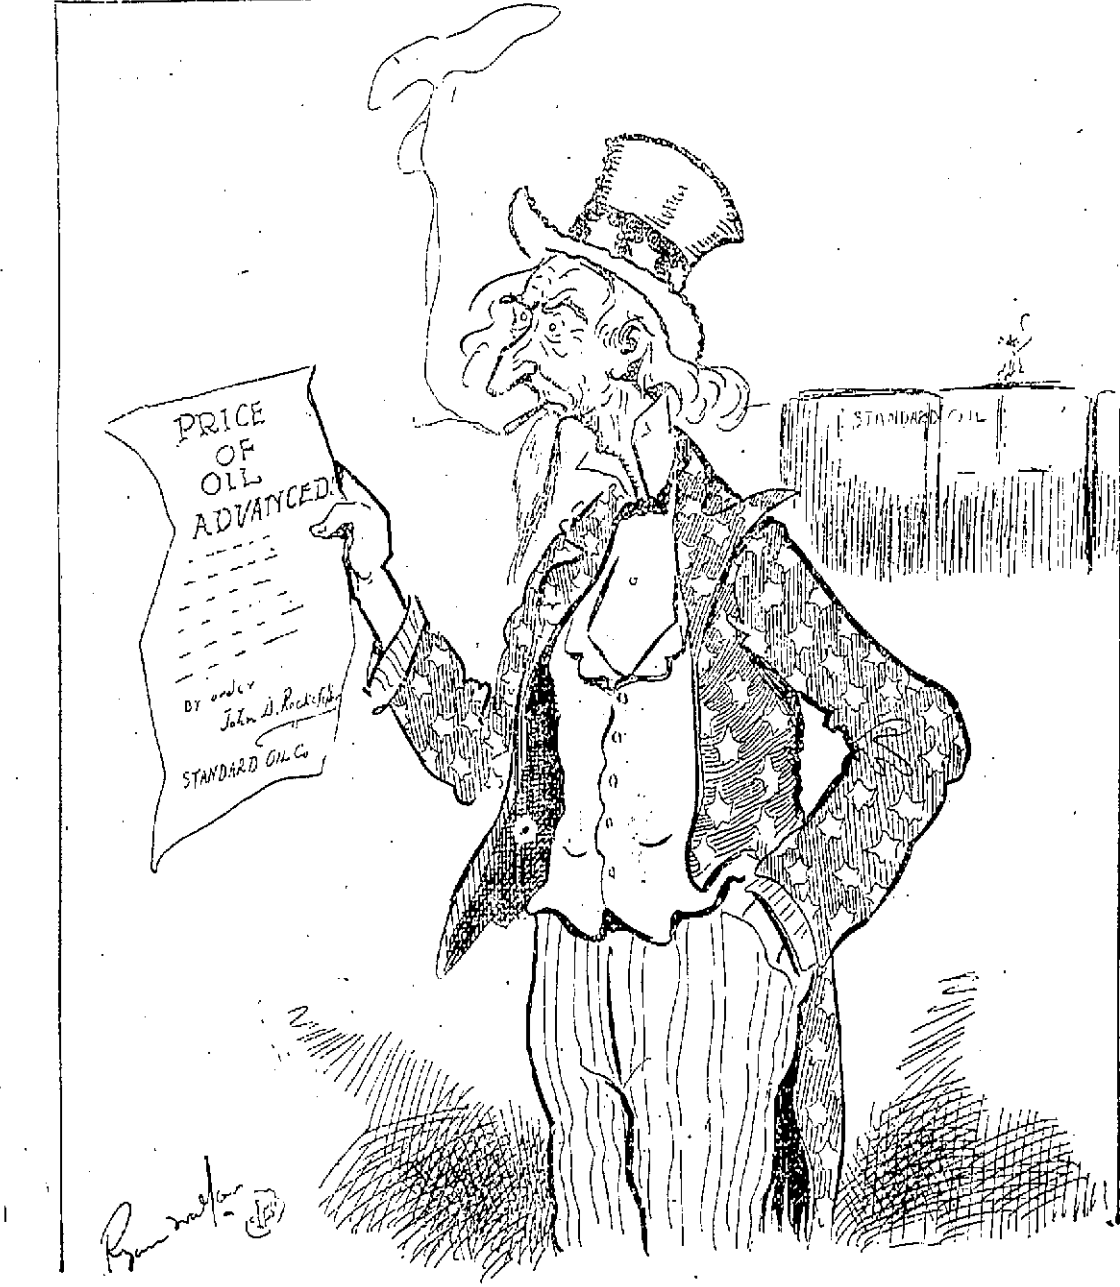

Felts, who is 60 years old, seeks his release from a life sentence on the ground that he was not given the constitutional right of knowing what transpired at his trial in Rockford, Ill., because of deafness.

Refuses to Hear Petition.
He alleges that the proceedings should have been written for him. His right to file a petition for a writ of habeas corpus was denied by the state supreme court and every other judge to whom he applied refused the issue.

Retiring Viceroy and Wife Leave Bombay for England—Minto To Be Installed Soon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Bombay, Nov. 18.—Lord Curzon, the retiring Viceroy of India, accompanied by Lady Curzon, sailed today for England. There are many in India who rejoice at the departure of the husband of the American girl who has won such a triumph abroad, while on the other hand there are friends of the Viceroy who consider Lord Curzon's retirement as a misfortune which marks the triumph of Jingoism. He was a careful and competent administrator of the tangled scheme of Oriental government. He holds the respect of all but those who thought that England's Eastern policy should be one of military aggression. Great preparations are being made for the installation of Earl Minto, who succeeds Lord Curzon as Viceroy of India, and it is believed that Lady Minto and her daughters will be immensely popular among the princes and potentates of India.

EQUALIZATION BOARD'S REPORT TO SUPERVISORS

Shows A Number Of Changes In Valuation Of Towns And Villages Of County As Reported By Assessors.

Estimating that the county tax will be $1.60 on the thousand valuation, the equalization committee of the county board has made a number of revisions in the assessed valuations of the towns and cities and taxes based thereon, as shown in the appended table. Last year taxes were levied on a $41,000,000 valuation for the whole county. This year the county valuation has been raised to $47,000,000, which is regarded as about 30 per cent of the true valuation. The schedule last year was an arbitrary one, while this year it is claimed that the figures much more nearly approximate the real valuations.

That it takes large increases in valuation to raise the tax to any appreciable extent, when the rate is as low as $1.60 on the thousand, is forcibly brought to one's attention by such an illustration as that of Beloit. The line city is raised $500,000 in valuation by the equalizing board and the corresponding raise in the total tax to be collected there for county purposes is $880. Largely on account of the Rock County Sugar Co.'s factory, the town of La Prairie is raised $150,000 in valuation over the assessors' figures. This raise means an increase of $150 in the tax.

The following table shows the changes, where any, have been made:

	Schedule adopted, based on a 47 million basis, being 50 per cent of true value.	Schedule of last year, based on a 41 million basis.	Decrease in assessed valuation.	Increase in assessed valuation.	Decrease in county taxes.	Increase in county taxes.

Labor Notes

In Russia the penalty for leading a strike is the same as that for rebellion.

There are nearly 2,000,000 members of labor unions in Great Britain. Their yearly income is nearly $10,000,000 and they have in their treasuries $15,000,000.

The English Amalgamated Society of Engineers reports a membership of 95,938. There are 5,120 drawing assistance from the fund for the benefit of unemployed members.

The United States census bureau reports show that the average annual wage of the American laborer is $437.

Pacific coast labor unions will again make a fight in congress for legislation to protect American seamen from the unemployed importation of Chinese crews for service on vessels flying the American flag.

There are about 600,000 people employed rearing silk worms.

Throughout the world about three per cent of the people gain their living directly from the sea.

Farm laborers in Siberia receive from $2.50 to $4.00 a month and ration of rice and fish.

FORT ATKINSON NOT ON GRIDIRON TODAY

Cancelled Game with Big South Side Milwaukee Team—Grade School Teacher Dead.

Superintendent Bagerman of Fort Atkinson late yesterday afternoon cancelled the game with the Big South Side Milwaukee eleven, which was to visit Fort Atkinson today. This action was taken out of respect for the relatives and friends of Miss Charlotte Hibbard of Jefferson, a teacher in one of the Fort Atkinson graded schools, whose death occurred yesterday morning. Coach Hildan said last evening that the Cream City team will probably not meet the Fort eleven this season, but that a game either with the Madison highs or the winners in today's game between Eau Claire and Superior would be arranged for Thanksgiving day. The cancellation of today's game will save Fort Atkinson's record of victories, but will without doubt make it impossible for them to claim honors in the race for special mention by the State Interscholastic Athletic Board. South Side plays Pio Nono academy this afternoon.

CANAL BUILDERS HAVE A PROBLEM

IN DISPOSING OF THE EXCAVATED EARTH.

PROBABLY DUMP IN THE BAY

This Means the Panama Railroad Must Be Used to Convey the "Diggings"

(By N. A. WALKS.)

Culebra, Canal Zone, Rep. de Panama.—Work on the canal has gradually been growing for several weeks past and there are now ten or fifteen of the steam shovels at work. I think the problem of disposing of the excavations is to be solved at this, the Panama end of the canal, by hauling it via the Panama Railroad to that city and there be dumped from a trestle work built out into the bay, which will be a better way as this will give opportunity of building a good firm roadway permanently where needed in connection with the Panama Railway. The tide of the Pacific at Panama has a rise and fall of as much as 21 feet, so that a dumping trestle can easily be built during low tides and which will allow dumping for probably years on one trestle track, as the washing of the waters will tend to reduce the formation of a pile of everything except the rock. While many unofficial rumors reach us, there are some indications of this one being carried out, as good permanent tracks of heavy steel are being built from the canal to the Panama Railroad.

From Bas Obispo to Pedro Miguel a distance of ten miles, much activity is going on, as within this scope the principal part of the work so far as being done. All along the canal on this distance are many railroad tracks and frequently there are not works of them. Stations inclusive from Bas Obispo south are Las Casca (water falls), Empire, Culebra, Rio Grande, Superior, Cucaracha, Paraiso (Paradise), Pedro Miguel. The whole of this distance is thickly set with mountain peaks, the railroads and canal route following these with many curves, particularly the Panama railroad.

Hundreds of men are quartered at each place, each one having their sanitary departments and several a hospital, and heads of all departments all coming, however, under the Division Engineer at Culebra. The headquarters of the Assistant Engineer and Division Engineer are at Empire. My work is to carry these officials in an automobile railway car all over this territory. I am on duty for immediate call from 7 a. m. to 2 p. m. and at a moment's notice am ready to be flying to some given point on the work. Such runs are a continual rounding of obscure curves up and down steep inclines, over bad tracks among the many trains and engines. I fully realized the responsibility of a passenger engineer on my first trip with the Chief Engineer, Mr. Stevens and party, which included one lady. I have carried Mr. Stevens several times and have been fortunate in having no mishaps whatever. On one occasion I made a flying trip to Pedro Miguel Station to make connections with a Panama Railway train on short time and was congratulated on the run made despite many delays in meeting trains, etc. My car has a capacity of nine persons including the chauffeur.

ALLIE WARNER IS KEPT IN HOSPITAL

Janesville Boy Injured at Wausaukee Suffers with Two Broken Ribs and Scalp Wounds.

Particulars of the accident which befell Allie Warner of this city at Wausaukee Wednesday have reached this city. He was riding on a hand-car, "pumping" the forward handles and necessarily facing to the rear. In some manner he lost his footing and balance and fell before the vehicle. Two wheels of the car passed over his chest, fracturing two ribs. His head was also cut in two ugly wounds and when picked up by his fellow workmen he was in an unconscious condition. Mr. Warner was taken to a hospital and two doctors were called in to attend him. He will be confined at Wausaukee for two weeks, but expects then to be able to come home to recuperate. He was working with a cement gang on the St. Paul road. Two other Janesville residents, Coley Warner, a brother of the injured man, and James Dower, are in the same employment.

Ten Thousand Dollar Carnegie Library Proposed For Edgerton.

Within a year from the present residents of Edgerton expect to be enjoying the use of a ten-thousand-dollar library building. The necessary funds are a gift from Andrew Carnegie and the site, that on which the old Baptist church stands, was presented to the city by the Baptist society. The library board employed Architect H. A. Foele of Green Bay to draw plans for the building and the above is a reproduction of the perspective prepared by him. The plans were drawn with a view of utilizing the old church walls and but one change will be made in the general ground plan, which will be a thirty-foot extension on the east. The material for the walls is to be Roman brick of an olive hue and the trimmings are to be of Bedford stone. The interior furnishings and furnishings, which are to be paid for in the ten thousand, are to be up-to-date and beautiful.

The plans call for two floors. On the first or basement floor there will be a lecture-room, coat-rooms, kitchen, wardrobe and toilet. The auditorium is to be 47x37 with a twenty-foot stage at one end. The seating capacity of this will be three hundred and twenty-five. The library proper will mainly occupy the second floor, but there will also be a private office for the librarian, a meeting-room for the board and a room for the women's club. The city now has a good collection of books and with the beautiful new building Edgerton will be very much up to the times as regards a free public library.

"Modus operandi," literally translated means "way of setting to work." So that the Help Wants come to be to many people a "modus operandi."

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Saturday, November 18, 1865.—A private letter states that the thirteenth regiment, now in Texas, is to be mustered out immediately. Good.

Sale of Property.—Establishment of a Boot and Shoe Factory.—The brick block on West Milwaukee street, known as the Riker property, was sold yesterday to Messrs. Bates and Jenkins for $2,000. It was a bargain at which those gentlemen may reasonably congratulate themselves. We understand that it is their purpose to use the whole or a part of the premises for a boot and shoe manufactory—an enterprise in which the whole community will wish them abundant success.

Projected Adjournment of Congress to Philadelphia.—A large number of congressmen, unable to obtain rooms and board in Washington for anything, have engaged quarters for the coming session at Baltimore, and will commute on the railroad. The extor-tionate demands of the landlords have induced several others to agree upon the introduction of a resolution as soon as congress is organized, adjourning the session to Philadelphia, and instructing the Sergeant-at-Arms to procure suitable accommodations there. The contingency of the cholera visitation stimulates the project. Every member who has thus far been consulted promises to support the measure.

City Items.—Capt. Putnam, who deserted this community some three weeks since, has returned, we observe. As no draft was pending when he went away, we can assure him that he has not lost none of the rights of citizenship by his absence. Now that the bridge is nicely fenced in, our citizens may as well know that this is an expedient to make the structure last until spring. The timbers are deemed too unsound to warrant much repairing. A new bridge will be the necessary consequence.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

Moving pictures come and go, and each successive season sees a new series of motion films, each advertised as better than anything that has preceded it. This assertion is, as a rule, quite correct, for the advance in moving photography has been rapid and each year sees finer films than any yet developed. The climax and the same, however, seem to have been reached in the Brit-Nelson fight pictures. These are by long odds the best, the cleanest, the clearest, and the prettiest motion pictures yet taken in any field of endeavor. They lack nothing, and they have everything that could be required. Details are accurate, figures seem to veritably move and breathe, and the clearness is both perfect and artistic. These pictures surpass anything ever shown, and it is doubtful if, even under the most favorable circumstances, a better set of films will ever be obtained.

WEATHER FORECAST

Cloudy; probably rain.

"A lion is known by his paw"—seeing only its paw you could not be persuaded that it was a coyote or jack-rabbit. A store is known by its ads. A man who has never been in this city would be able to identify, unerringly, the enterprising and important stores simply from looking over the ads in this newspaper.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

A professor in the Chicago University recently propounded the following question on education. While prepared for a class of students they apply to people who have not enjoyed the advantages of higher education.

1. "Has education given you sympathy with everything pure and clean?"
2. "Can you look an honest man or pure woman straight in the eye?"
3. "Do you see anything to love in a little child?"
4. "Will a lonely dog follow you down the street?"
5. "Do you think that washing dishes or hoeing corn is just as compatible with high thinking as playing the piano or golf?" (N. B.—Everybody knew enough to say "yes" to this one.)
6. "Can you look into a mud puddle and see a reflection of God's beautiful sky in it—that is—can you see good in everything?"
7. "Has education made you public-spirited so that your interest extends beyond your own doorway?"
8. "Has it made you a brother to the weak?"
9. "Have you learned the proper value of money and time?"
10. "Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?"
11. "Have you learned to be a friend to yourself?" (Note.—There were affirmative answers to this.)
12. "Can you be high-minded and happy in the meaner drudgeries of life?"
13. "Can you be happy alone. Are you good for anything to yourself?"
14. "Can you look up into the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Does your soul claim relationship with the Creator?"

The impression prevails, to greater or less extent, that all educated people are the product of the university or college, and this necessarily bars from the favored class, ninety-five per cent. of the population.

While this sentiment may be a source of satisfaction to people who endorse it, the fact remains that education is a larger thing than simply a knowledge of text books.

This fact the Chicago professor had in mind when he prepared his list of questions, for observation had taught him that a $5,000 educational investment on a fifty-cent boy never develops an educated man.

The brain of humanity is a complex faculty, susceptible, in most cases of being influenced and developed by the surroundings with which it is environed, but the heart of humanity is like the face of an open-faced watch, and as easily interpreted as the figures on the dial.

Development of the brain may be aided by text book knowledge, and other things being equal the college man possesses some advantages which the average mortal does not enjoy, but unless the heart is enlisted to the extent that it controls motives and influences action, the product of the college is a failure, so far as education is concerned.

"Sympathy with everything pure and clean" is a part of the moral code in all institutions of learning, but the principle is as old as time itself and so generally recognized that it enters into every condition of life and is the safeguard of society.

"The ability to look an honest man or woman straight in the eye" is not acquired from text books, but is the God given right of upright man and womanhood.

"Do you see anything to love in a little child?" is not an appeal to the brain. The love of children comes from the heart, and the best equipped mind, destitute of this love, has no business in the school room or the home.

"Will a lonely dog follow you down the street?" appeals to an element of sympathy which even a dog recognizes, but the ability to make the dog understand it, is not discovered or acquired in the college.

"Do you think that washing dishes or hoeing corn is just as compatible with high thinking as playing the piano or golf?" That's the rub. The dignity of toil is one of the lost arts, and an army of people in this country today, are ambitious to get through the world with as little personal effort as possible. Something for nothing is the popular watchword, and the principle is strenuously followed. The ability to see good in everything depends on the attitude of the observer. The mind may or may not be cultured. The fact is, the entire list of questions appeal to the heart rather than the head and the professor was evidently aware of the fact that unless the heart be enlisted, education is a failure.

A farmer was looking at a ten-dollar barometer the other day. He said: "I'm going to buy one, for I believe that every farmer should be an educated farmer, and there is a good deal of common every-day science that we can afford to cultivate."

The young man was right. He had discovered by observation that the most successful tillers of the soil, are the men of intelligence.

The best educated people today are the people who occupy the front ranks in the calling selected for their life work. They are masters of the situation and command respect on this account.

The old engineer who climbs down from his cab at the end of a record-breaking run and speaks to the engine, that throbs like a thing of life, in tones of endearment, is an educated engineer, yet the chances are that he never graduated from a high school course.

An old conductor, who had been in the employ of the Michigan Southern for thirty-five years, was standing on the platform at Buffalo the other night, waiting for the fast mail which he was to take west. He said: "I couldn't pass a civil service examination but I know how to run a train and never had an accident." He stood at the head of his profession and was filling the place full.

Thus it is in all the walks of life. The people who invest in their work, all the heart they have, and all the powers of mind which they are able to develop, are the educated people. The great university of life is the people's college, and the prizes are within the grasp of every student.

Madison Democrat: However, it is agreeable to realize that the harmless, innocent deer will not alone be shot now that the slaughtering season is open.

Just a Lingering Suspicion.
Exchange: Somehow a faint suspicion arises that the stuff that bound that Kenyon college boy to the railway track came out of a bottle.

Are They Reasonable Risks?
Chicago Record-Herald: Two hunters were killed on the first day of the open season in Wisconsin. Do the life insurance companies continue to accept hunters as reasonable risks?

Bang-Ups Bunged Up.
Evening Wisconsin: Preparation for Saturday's game is to a large extent a hobnobbing around at Madison and Ann Arbor. "Bang up" teams evidently get "bunged up" when they play.

Herrick Alone in His Grief.
Racine Journal: It must be rather galling to Governor Herrick of Ohio to be defeated while all the others on his ticket are elected. It would seem that he has made some bitter enemies while in office.

People Want An Affidavit.
Appleton Post: It begins to look as though it would be necessary for Speaker Lenroot to make an affidavit that he is a candidate for governor before people take his announcement to that effect seriously.

They've Been in Engine-Room.
Milwaukee Sentinel: It will be a difficult matter to convince either Davidson or Connor that La Follette is asleep or resting between campaigns. Both have been in the engine room and know how quickly the machine runs at times.

Sad Fact is Recalled.
Sheboygan Journal: The government's suit against the Pabst Brewing company and the Wisconsin railroads, for rebates alleged to have been paid on beer, again recalls the sad fact that no rebates ever are given on the "suds."

If Converse Were Only True!
Madison Journal: Mr. McGillivray insists he has faith in the people. Now if the unimportant detail of the reverse of this proposition were true, Mac might soon be taking his aerial laboratory round the country as a true sample of the Wisconsin product.

But It's Immoral to Praise Him.
El Paso Herald: Dr. Hirsch of Chicago takes the position that it is all right to accept tainted money as long as the donor is not sassy about it. "It is the duty of the multimillionaire to endow churches, hospitals, and schools, but it is immoral to praise him for his gifts."

Predicts Panic in 1907.
Wausau Record: The Merrill Star is inclined to believe that we are doomed to meet up with a panic about 1907. If we do it will be the result of fool radical agitation and legislation that will disturb business conditions in order to give some agitators snug berths with salaries out of the taxes and not as a result of real conditions.

No Council Meet at Monroe.
Monroe Sentinel: There was no council meeting last night through lack of quorum. Those of the honorable body present sat around for an hour or so and swapped yarns, as J. Harvey Eaton dropped in for a time and enlivened things with his usual assortment of hot-air explosions.

Machine's Injury to Students.
Milwaukee News: It appears, however, that in finding places in the state service for students, La Follette has been giving encouragement to professionalism in athletics. The demoralization of the university's athletics is merely a phase of the general demoralization that has followed on the heels of the injection of half-breed politics into the affairs of the institution.

Knows Where Shoes Pinches.
Oshkosh Northwestern: The Fond du Lac Bulletin has been rejoicing with the other papers over the recent turn-down administration to some of the big political bosses of the east, but evidently it does not want the people of Wisconsin to get this same idea in their heads too strongly. It pinches up the courage to remark that "An honest, clear, public-spirited, just and manly political boss need not be feared by any community." Apparently The Bulletin appreciates where the shoe pinches.

Men Who Caused Big Hearst Vote.
La Crosse Leader-Press: It is the opinion of the Chicago Tribune that Mr. Hearst had only a small part in creating the sentiment which crystallized in the remarkable total of nearly a quarter of a million votes given him as an independent candidate for Mayor of New York. Others were more powerful than he in securing this vote for him. His most efficient lieutenants, the Tribune thinks, "were Murphy, the suddenly enriched boss of Tammany, Odell, the republican boss, and such men as Chauncey M. Depew, John A. McCall and Richard A. McCurdy, who, after enjoying for years reputations for respectability, have lately been found to be whitened sepulchres."

Live Saints and Dead Ones.
Milwaukee Free Press: The Rev. Dr. William T. McElveen, pastor of the Shawmut Congregational church, Boston, said in his Sunday sermon that William Travers Jerome is a better saint than St. Jerome of Bethlehem, who was as ascetic, praying and fasting, and keeping the influence of his life from the people of his time. "Jerome, the New Yorker," said Dr. McElveen, "comes eating, drinking and smoking and fights for the oppressed. He smites the grafter and the corruptionist, he assails the political bosses, he works for his people's welfare. The people of New York have good reason to canonize him."

In both the east and west the biggest games of the football year are being played this afternoon. In the west the interest centers on the Wisconsin-Michigan game at Ann Arbor and in the east on the annual Yale-Princeton game at New Haven. Minor games are being played both east and west, but these two games stand out in prominence in the football world as the big games of the year. Both Princeton and Yale are in the pink of condition and the contest promises to be a most interesting one. Pennsylvania's victory over Harvard two weeks ago has put that University out of the running and the game between Dartmouth and Harvard at Cambridge is not of importance.

Eastern Games
Other eastern games scheduled for this afternoon are: Cornell vs. Columbia in Ithaca, Syracuse vs. New York university in Syracuse, Amherst vs. Williams in Williamstown, Cornell vs. Cincinnati in Cincinnati, Penn State vs. Dickinson in Williamsport, Georgetown vs. Bucknell in Washington, Wesleyan vs. Trinity in Middletown, Brown vs. Vermont in Providence, Hobart vs. Union in Schenectady, Holy Cross vs. Tufts in Worcester, St. Johns vs. Gallaudet in Annapolis, George Washington vs. West Maryland in Washington, Harvard vs. Rutgers in New Brunswick, Harvard '09 vs. Yale '09 in Cambridge, Pennsylvania vs. Villi Nave in Philadelphia.

At New Haven
New Haven, Conn., Nov. 18.—Great crowds were early at the Yale-Princeton game. The weather is bright, warm and pleasant and the spectators say there is too high a temperature for comfort to the players.

Princeton 4, Yale 24
The final score of the great eastern game is: Princeton 4, Yale 24.

In the west the Michigan-Wisconsin game stands out before all others. It is estimated that nineteen thousand people are witnessing the contest from all parts of the country. Some five hundred enthusiasts passed through Janesville last evening en route for Ann Arbor and were joined in Chicago by four hundred more, alumni from Milwaukee and Chicago. Michigan has not lost a game this season and has scored 498 points to its opponents' nothing. Wisconsin has lost one game to Chicago, and has scored 237 to sixteen by opponents. Other western games today are: Illinois vs. Chicago in Chicago, Minnesota vs. Nebraska in Minneapolis, Lawrence vs. Ripon in Appleton, Wabash vs. Indiana in Bloomington, Monmouth vs. Augustiana in Rock Island, Iowa vs. Drake in Iowa City, Oberlin vs. Ohio State in Columbus, Lake Forest vs. Knox in Calverton, Purdue vs. Armour in Lafayette, Wisconsin '09 vs. Chicago '09 in Madison.

SEVERELY INJURED IN FOOTBALL GAME

Evansville High School Captain Suffers with Sprained Knee—Team Bested Milton Junction.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Evansville, Nov. 18.—In the football game between the Milton Junction and Evansville high schools here yesterday afternoon B. Erwin Winters, captain of the home eleven, sustained a severe injury. During a scrimmage he was "fald out" and his knee badly hurt. It was thought that the bone had been fractured, but an examination at the office of Dr. Spencer, where he was hurriedly taken, showed that the member was only sprained badly. As a result of the accident he will be confined for some time. Captain Winters was one of the strongest players on the Evansville eleven and his absence in the game with Janesville next Saturday will be a serious loss. Yesterday's contest resulted in a victory for the locals by a very close score—6 to 5. Each eleven scored a touchdown and the Evansville team secured their goal. Two sixty-yard runs by Gilbert of the Junction aggregation were the features of the game.

BOOKS and Magazines

Common Errors in Speech.

Who does not make errors in everyday speech? As a matter of fact it is very unusual to find any person whose use of the English language is absolutely correct. The following are examples of some very frequent errors or faulty expressions often heard:

"Let you and I go"—should be "you and me."

"I am as good as her"—should be "as she."

"You are younger than me"—should be "than I."

"Come to dinner with John and I"—should be "John and me."

"Between you and I"—should be "you and me."

"Where are you going? Who? Me?"—should be "Who? I?"

"Who do you see?"—should be "whom."

"It was her"—should be "it was she."

"Was it him?"—should be "Was it he?"

"Who was it by?"—should be "whom."

"These examples of 'Faulty Diction' are so common that many people look upon the improper form as being the correct one, and Thomas H. Russell, L. L. B., Editor-in-Chief of Webster's International Dictionary, has done the public a great service in having written the new book, entitled 'Faulty Diction, or Errors in the Use of the English Language and How to Correct Them,' which the publishers have, by printing it on thin Bible paper, succeeded in getting into what may be called vest-pocket size.

Illustrating the comprehensive treatment that has been given the subject by the author, there are 1017 headings treated in the book, under some of which "plurals" for instance—over fifty errors that are not at all unusual are to be found illustrated and corrected.

It is rarely one's good fortune to become possessed of so valuable a book, and especially one so handsomely bound in embossed Russia leather and will be sent postpaid on receipt of 50c to any address by Geo. W. Ogilvie & Co., Publishers, 109 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. They also publish the same book in cloth binding and will send a copy of it in that style on receipt of 25c.

Robert Barr's New Book.

In his new book "The Speculations of John Steele" Robert Barr has added to his already large following, a new class of reading. John Steele is one of those wonderful creations of fiction and arrangement. He believes, and proves to the satisfaction of the reader, that a vast majority of the industrial statistics, upon which a great amount of money and energy were expended, are fallacious and misleading. He points out that the set of questions by which these returns were obtained was calculated rather to prove a thesis already existing in the minds of the census authorities than to elicit the unvarnished facts, and that the returns are in consequence invalidated. It is an important paper, likely to lead to important results.

The End of a Villain.

There is a certain savage satisfaction in the disposal of a thorough villain in a most painful manner. In "The Reckoning," by Robert W. Chambers, published by D. Appleton & Company, the author draws a most satisfactory picture of the villain's demise. The occasion was the fight at Butler's Ford, and the hero is speaking:

"Never, never shall I forget the instant picture as it broke upon my view; my deadly enemy kneeling by the spring, black hair disheveled, the sunshiny striking his tin cup as he raised it to his lips; the three naked Onedais, in their glistening scarlet paint, eagerly raising their rifles, while the merciless weapons of Murphy and Elerson slowly fell to the same level, focused on that kneeling figure across the dark waters of the stream.

"A second only, then, God knows why, I could not endure to witness a justice so closely allied with murder, and sprang forward, crying out, 'Cease firing! Take him alive!' But with the words half-spoken, flame after flame parved from those leveled muzzles, and through the rolling smoke I saw Walter Butler fall, roll over and over, his body and limbs contracting with agony."

DOES YOUR SCALP ITCH?

Are Your Hairs Dropping One by One?

If your scalp itches you are doubtless suffering from dandruff. The dandruff germ is digging up your scalp in little lakes, called dandruff, and sapping the life of the hair bulb. No hair preparation that is a mere hair stimulant and tonic will cure dandruff, because it won't kill the germ that causes the trouble. Newbro's Herpicide is the latest scientific discovery; and it will kill any dandruff germ. Destroy the cause, and you remove the effect; kill the germ and you will have no more dandruff, falling hair or baldness. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

Judith of the Plains

Kitty and Peter finished their walk, one of the few round dances of the evening.

"How perfectly you dance, Kitty! It's a long time since we've had a walk together."

The cow punchers looked at Kitty as if she were not quite flesh and blood. Such flaxen daintiness, femininity etherealized to angelic perfection, was new to them, but their admiration was like that given to a delicate exotic which, wonderful as it is, one is well pleased to view through the glass of the tourist's window.

Peter was deferentially attentive and zealous to make the Wetmore party have a thoroughly good time, yet he did all these things, as it were, without any of the usual motives of the world, talking, making himself agreeable, "doing his duty," while his subconsciousness was busy with other matters. It was rather through telepathy than through any lack of attention paid to her that Kitty realized the state of things, and in proportion to her realization came a feeling of helplessness; it was so new, so unexpected, so cruel. He seemed drifting away from her on some tide of affairs of the very existence of which she had been unconscious. Further and further he drifted till intelligible speech no longer seemed possible between them. They said the foolish, empty things that people call out as the boat glides away from the shore, the things that all the world may hear, and in his eyes there was only that smiling kindness. How had it come about after all these years? What was it that had first cut the cable that sent him drifting?

The dancers seemed bitten to the quick with the tarantula of an ecstatic hilarity. Their bodies swayed in perfect harmony to the swing of the fiddles and the swell of the choruses. The most uncouth of them came under the spell of that mad magic. Their movements, that in the beginning of the dance had been shy and awkward, became almost beautiful. They forgot arms, hands, feet. Their bodies had become like the strings of some skillfully played instrument obediently responsive to rhythm, and in that composite blending of races each in his dancing brought some of the poetry of his own far land. The scene was amazing in its beauty and simplicity, like the strong, inspirational power and rugged rhythm of some old border minstrel. One by one the dancers glowed with better understanding. Discard elements, alien nations, were fused to harmony in this vivid picture. Peter turned to Kitty, expecting to see her face aglow with the warmth of it. She stood beside him, the one unresponsive soul in the room, on her lips a pale, tolerant smile.

"Aren't they splendid, Kitty, these women? More than half of them work like heavers all day, and they have young children and dozens of worries. But would you suspect it? They're just the women for this country."

Now, in the present state of affairs almost any other subject would have been better calculated to promote good feeling than the one on which Peter had alighted. Kitty's thoughts had, however, lingered about one who, though not one with these women, had yet their sturdy self reliance, their acquiescence in grim conditions, their apathy in simple things. Kitty's apprehension, slow to kindle, had taken her like a forest, and by its blaze she saw things in a distorted light. Her present vision magnified the relations of Peter and Judith to a degree that a month ago she would have regarded as impossible. "He is her lover?" was the accusation that suddenly flashed through her mind, and with the thought an overwhelming desire to say something unkind, something that should hurt him, supplanted all judgment and reason.

"Oh, it's a decidedly remarkable scene, pictorially. I agree with you. And an artist, of course—but isn't it a little quixotic, Peter, to idealize them because they are having a good time? There's no virtue in it. It is conceivable that they might have to work just as hard and have just as many little children to look after and yet not have these dances you praise them for coming to."

"I'm afraid you find us and our amusements a little crude. Evidently the spirit of our dances does not appeal to you. But I did not suppose it necessary to remind you that they should not be judged by the standard of conventional evening parties," said Peter, but and angry in his turn.

"Us, our amusements, our dances? So you are quite identified with these people, my dear Peter, and I had thought you an ornament of cotillions and country clubs. I can only infer that it is somebody in particular who has brought about your change of heart."

Peter flushed a little, and Kitty kept on: "Some of the native belles are quite wonderful, I believe. Nannie Wetmore, for instance, a half breed who is very handsome."

Peter set his lips. "At the expense of spoiling Nannie's pretty remembrance I must tell you that the lady she refers to is not only the most beautiful of women, but she would be at ease in any drawing room." Peter spoke without calculating the conviction that his words carried. He was angry, and his manner, voice, intonation, showed it.

Kitty, now that her most unworthy suspicions had been confirmed by Peter's ardent championing of Judith, lost her ascension in the pang that gnawed her little soul: "I beg your pardon, Peter. When I spoke I did not, of course, know that this young woman was anything to you."

"Anything to me? My dear Kitty, I've never had a better friend than Judith Rodney."

The dance was at its flood tide. The exhilaration had grown with each sweep of the fiddle bow, with the sobriety of sinuous, swaying bodies, with the song of the dancers as they joined in the calling out of the figures, with the rhythmic shuffle of feet, with the hum of the pulses, with the leaping of blood to cheek and heart till the dancers whirled as leaves circling toward the eddies of a whirlpool. The dancing Mrs. Dax split her favors into infinitesimal fragments, for each measure of which her long list of waiting gallants stood ready to pick a quarrel if need be. Her dancing, in the splendor of its spontaneity, had something of the surge of the west wind sweeping over a field of grain. Sometimes she waved back her partner and alone danced a figure, putting to the music her own interpretation—barbaric, passionate, rude, but magnificently vivid. And the dancers would stop and crowd about her, clapping hands and stamping feet to the rhythmic movement of her body, while against the wall her hostile sister-in-law, Mrs. Leander, stood and glared in a fury of disapproval. Leander himself smiling broadly, meanwhile and exercising the utmost restraint to keep from joining Mrs. Johnnie's train.

The XXX men, who had remained aloof from the dancers and the movement, keeping a faithful vigil in the bank room, where the hospitable bottles were to be found, seemed to awaken from the spell that had bound them all day. Henderson, the foreman, whose face had not lost its tall, pale paleness despite the number of his potations, put his head through the door to have a look at the dancing, was caught in the outermost eddy of the whirling throng and was soon dancing as merrily as the others. The rest of the XXX party still hugged the bank room, where the bottles gleamed hospitably. They were still dazed from their long ride of the early morning, and more than once their fear-quickened imaginations had been haunted by the specter of the dead cottonwoods, from which something heavy and limp and warm had been swaying when they left it. Henderson had secured the dancing Mrs. Dax for a partner. The "caller out," stationed between the two rooms, warned to his general task. He improvised, he put a wealth of imagination and personality into his work, he showered compliments on the minableness of Mrs. Dax's feet, he joked Henderson on his pallor, he attempted a wordy venture at Kitty.

Judith stood for a moment in the kindly enveloping darkness, and her heart cried out in protest at the thing she must do. It was the utmost cruelty of fate that forced her here to dance on the evening of the day that they had killed him. But she must do it that his children might evade the stigma of "cattle thief," that the shadow of the gallows tree might not fall across their young lives, that the neighbors might give credence to the tale of Jim's escape from his enemies, that Alida and she might earn the pittance that would give the children the "clean start" that Jim had set his heart on so confidently. And she must dance and be the merriest of them all that these things might happen, but again and again she deferred the dread moment. "The light, the music, the voices, the shuffle of the feet, came to her as she stood forlorn in the grateful darkness."

A Living Monument.

If we were to assemble all those who have been cured of heart disease by Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and who would to-day be in their graves had not Dr. Miles' been successful in perfecting this wonderful heart specific, they would populate a large city.

What a remarkable record—a breathing, thinking, moving monument, composed of human lives—that for which every other earthly possession is sacrificed.

The Miles Medical Co. receive thousands of letters from people like the following: "I feel indebted to the Dr. Miles' Heart Cure for my life. I desire to call the attention of others suffering as I did to this remarkable remedy for the heart. For a long time I had suffered from shortness of breath after any little exertion, palpitation of the heart, and at times terrible pain in the region of the heart, so serious that I feared that I would some time drop dead upon the street. One day I read one of your circulars, and immediately went to my druggist and purchased two bottles of the Heart Cure, and took it according to directions. With the result that I am entirely cured. Since then I never miss an opportunity to recommend this remedy to my friends who have heart trouble; in fact I am a traveling advertisement for it. I am widely known in this locality."

Judith drew close to the window, and the movement struck chill at her heart like the tolling of a knell. She saw the pale face of Henderson gleam yellow-white among the dancers, and watching him, the blood lust of the Indian woke in her heart. The rest of the room was but a blur. The dancers faded into swaying shadows. She saw nothing but Henderson as he danced that he might forget the gray of morning, the black, dead trees and the grotesque thing with head awry that swayed in the breeze like a pendulum. He dreaded the long, black ride that would bring him to his camp, for he alone of the lynchers remained. Something was drawing his gaze out into the blackness of the night. He struggled against the temptation to look toward the window. He whirled the Dax woman till her twinkling feet cleared the floor. He sang to the accompaniment of Miguel's fiddle. He was outwitting the thing that dangled before his eyes, having the incontrovertible last word with a vengeance.

And as he danced and swayed all unwittingly his glance fell on the window opposite, and Jim Rodney's face looked in at him, beautiful in its ecstasy, of late—Rodney's face, refined, sharpened, tried in some bitter crucible, but Rodney's face! Henderson could not withdraw his fascinated gaze. He stood in the midst of the dancers like a man turned to stone. He put up his hands to his eyes as if to brush away a cloud of swarming gnats, then threw up his arms and rushed from the room. The dancers paused in their mad whirl. Miguel's bow stopped with a wailing shriek. Every eye turned toward the window for an explanation of Henderson's sudden panic. "But all was dark without on the prairie. The magic had gone from the dance, the whirlwind of drapery that had swung like flags in a breeze dropped in dead air. "What was it?" the dancers asked one another in whispers.

And for answer Judith entered, but a Judith that was strange to them. There was about her a white radiance that kept the dancers back, and in her eyes something of Mary's look as she turned from Calvary. The dancers still kept the position of the figures, the men with their arms about their partners' waists, the women stepping forward. They were like the painted figures of dancers in a fresco. And among them stood Judith, waiting to play her part, waiting to show her world that she could dance and be merry because all was well with her and hers. But the bronzed soul of the saddle hung for the honor of a dance. They were afraid of her. It would be like dancing with the death angel. She looked from face to face. Surely some one would ask her to dance, and her eyes fell on Henderson returning from the bottled courage in the bank room. Some word was due from him to explain his terror of a moment ago. "Oh, Miss Judith, I thought you was a ghost when I seen you at the window."

"A ghost that's ready to dance." She held out her hand to him. In her gesture there was something of royal command, and Henderson, reading the meaning in her eyes, stepped forward. Her face, almost a perfect replica of the dead man's, looked at him.

"I bring you greeting from my brother," she said. "He has gone on a long journey."

Henderson started. Through the still room ran the murmur, "Rodney's outwitted them; he's played a joke on the rope." And Judith, his daredevil sister, had come with his greetings to Henderson, leader of the faction against him. The tide had turned. The applause that is ever the need of the winner was hers to command. The cattle faction were ready to sing the praises of her splendid audacity. In their hearts they were glad in the thought that Jim had outwitted them.

Miguel's bow dashed across the strings, and he drew from the little brown fiddle music that again made them merry and glowing. The magic came back to the dance, the blood leaped again with the merry madness, and they swept to the bowing like leaves when the first faint wail of winter cries in the trees. Hamilton, standing apart with Kitty Colebrook, had been a dazed witness of the scene. With the rest he had watched the entrance of Judith, had been stunned by the change in her appearance, had seen her triumph and heard the rumor of Jim's escape, and his heart had warmed with the good word. She had probably managed the plan and had come tonight, in the joy of her triumph, to hurl in their faces that she had outwitted them. And she had paid the penalty of her courage—her face told that. What a woman she was! She was the one woman in

DEPARTS HER FIANCE AT ALTAR

Kalamazoo, Mich., Bride-to-Be Deicides Man Is Too Old.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Nov. 18.—When everything was in readiness for the marriage of Minnie Hartshorn to J. H. Othoff, the bride-to-be suddenly asked to be excused a moment while she went to her room. Minutes flew by with the assembled company standing about the rooms and the lone groom facing the minister. One after another of the members of the family went in search of the girl, but without avail. It developed that she had disappeared. At night the girl returned, explaining that she had been at the home of a friend. She concluded at the last moment that Othoff, who is 56, was too old for a husband and she concluded not to marry him. Othoff's only comment is that "she who does not care for me is not worthy of me." The Hartshorns are wealthy Hollanders.

A STEADY DRAIN

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body—Make You Ill, Languid and Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Great Janesville can prove it.

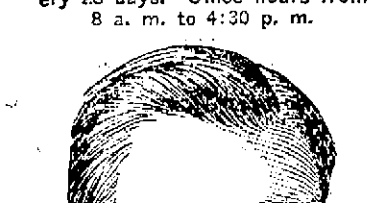

E. C. Abbott, of 278 South Main St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and found great relief from kidney trouble and backache. My trouble was a very weak back and persistent attacks of backache which almost kept me to my bed. The use of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at the Peoples' Drug Co., has relieved me of these troubles and I have every reason to recommend them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McIlburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

CHRISTIANS NEED MORE EDUCATION

Ignorance of Scriptures Is the Greatest Menace to the Church.

NEGROES HAVE FAITH IN GOD

Bishop Galloway Contends That No Man Ever Saw a Member of the Black Race Who Was Not a Believer.

New York, Nov. 18.—"Ignorance of the Scriptures is the greatest menace to the church of to-day," declared Rev. H. L. Willett of the University of Chicago, in his paper on "Our Faith in the Holy Scriptures," read at Friday night's session of the inter-church conference on federation. Dr. Willett urged the importance of the study of the Bible and said:

"I believe there are people here who would go to the stake for their belief and yet could not pass a gram- mar school examination in the Bible. The beginning of every spiritual revival has been in an increased study of the Bible."

Ask Mercy for Jews.

The conference, after adopting the appeal to Russians to be merciful to the Jews, presented by Dr. Washington Gladden, discussed the closer union of churches. Bishop J. S. Mills of the United Brethren church, who was the first speaker, suggested that the missionary boards hold joint meetings and urged co-operation in the work of education in the mission fields and the consolidation of mission schools, releasing part of the teachers for mis- sion work.

Rev. J. Winthrop Hegeman, D. D., of Ballston Spa, told of the present prac- tical working of the Federation of Churches and Christian workers in New York state. He said:

Work of Federations.

"The unit of our state work is the local federation—not the denomina- tion as yet. When we shall grow into a federation of denominations, the unit will still be the churches co-operating through a local federation. Local federations cannot touch gambling, Sunday desecrations and prostitution when they establish themselves outside the boundary of a town. County federation thus becomes a necessity. There are evils which stretch into sur- rounding counties, and ramify like can- cer through the entire state, which cannot be effectively treated without a state federation. This logically broadens into an international federa- tion, touching the interests of all peo- ples."

No Negro Atheists.
Bishop C. B. Galloway of the Meth- odist Episcopal church South discussed the negro question, saying: "I cannot understand how you can canonize one man for working in Africa and ostracize another for do- ing the same work at home. The problem of the negro sinks into in- significance beside the problem of the congested foreign immigration in our towns. Negroes love their country, they love Christ, they may believe in a little too much, and there may be rather a wider margin between their practice and their profession, but whoever saw a negro atheist?"

HIGHER PRICES RULE IN CHICAGO MARKET

Enormous Movement in Grain and Ad- vance in Quotations for Furnace Products and Hides Noted.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 18.—Dun's weekly review of Chicago trade says: "A new high record for bank ex- changes, an enormous movement of grain, and higher prices for furnace product and hides are the outstanding features of this week's developments. It is clear that the volume of business fully sustains unprecedented propor- tions, and it is not surprising that the use of money has depleted cash re- sources and forced an advance in the discount rates for commercial needs. "While commitments in iron and steel barely equaled recent aggregate, this does not relieve the tremendous pressure upon productive capacity, and the manufacturing conditions gener- ally exhibit growing strength. Distri- bution of commodities reflects an ex- panding consumption, but along with this is further evidence of inadequate transportation facilities and delays in transit which interfere with business operations. "Weather conditions continued to stimulate better demand in the lead- ing retail lines, sales of necessities making a good showing. Wholesale trade has held up very satisfactorily, visiting buyers staying in the markets to a larger proportion and later than usual at this season. Bookings made a good aggregate in footwear, cloth- ing, blankets and general dry goods, while shipments were large in food products, canned goods and hardware. Notwithstanding merchandise values average high, there is no hindrance to liberal absorption, and country stocks are seen to be diminishing. Farm ad- vices remain very encouraging, many improvements involving large outlays being under way, and mercantile collections are found prompt in this dis- trict.

"Western railroad earnings again are climbing above all former totals. "Failures reported in the Chicago district number twenty-seven, against twenty-one last week and twenty-five a year ago."

HOLDS SENATORS ARE GRAFTERS OF MILLIONS

National Grange Executive Committee in Vigorous Denunciation of Members of Congress.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 18.—United States senators were classed among grafters of millions in the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, in an- nual meeting here. The sensational charge was coupled with a vigorous denunciation of graft by the executive committee, of which Governor C. J. Bell of Vermont is a member.

"If there was no such graft, grafting or grafters," says the report, "there would be less crime, less miserable homes, less suicides. Punish graft- ing? Yes. But punish all or none. Do not imagine that the evil is curbed or the public appeased by sending a few postoffice toolers to prison while graft- ers of millions occupy official posi- tions of trust or hold down seats in the United States senate, making grafting the surest road to prosperity and fame. Our homes are invaded with graft by adulterated foods. So formidable has this become that the government is trying to curb its banef- ul influence by legislation."

The report approves the Esch- Townsend rate bill in congress; sees escape from the trusts in the convic- tion of packers in Chicago; urges fur- ther warfare in the interest of the parcel-post, and asks the support of other organizations of farmers; re- peats the demand for the election of United States senators by the people, and approves the Currie good roads bill in congress, which has for its ob- ject national aid in road building.

California, through its master granger, W. B. Griffith, sent a resolu- tion which declared that until the state exercised stricter control over the fire insurance and the nation over life insurance "the assured will be the victims of unscrupulous joint stock companies."

G. W. F. Gaunt, master granger of New Jersey, who presented a pure food resolution, reported that the ob- ject was for a stricter enforcement of national laws for the protection of the public from imposition. Mr. Hill of Pennsylvania sought to have a de- mand made for the enforcement of the anti-oleomargarine laws.

Many Would Be Paymaster.
Pennsylvania led in a list of 18 Washington, Nov. 18.—Illinois and New York were the only states to have more than one applicant for positions as paymaster in the United States navy.

Concentration of Thought.
Concentration of thought is most im- portant on whatever exercise is being carried out.

Mahogany Stain.
A good serviceable mahogany stain may be made as follows. Boil 1-2 lb. madder and 2 oz. logwood chips in 1 gallon of water, and apply while hot. When dry go over with a solution of 2 drachms pearl ash to 1 quart of wa- ter. The color can be varied by using different strengths of the solution.
